What We Do: LADOT Emergency Management

The LADOT Emergency Management Division coordinates the development of emergency management programs for the department and is involved in a number of services before, during and after a disaster. Their ongoing planning efforts within the department and with other city agencies includes developing operating procedures for all types of disasters, which direct our department's response during and after a disaster. They also are responsible for ensuring that LADOT has the resources needed in support of training and emergency response activities. Emergency Management staff serves as a department representative on the Emergency Management Committee and various subcommittees, and liaison to the Emergency Management Department (EMD), other city departments/bureaus and governmental agencies. During a large scale disaster or emergency, this team helps coordinate the efforts of our entire department with EMD.

California Transportation Workshop

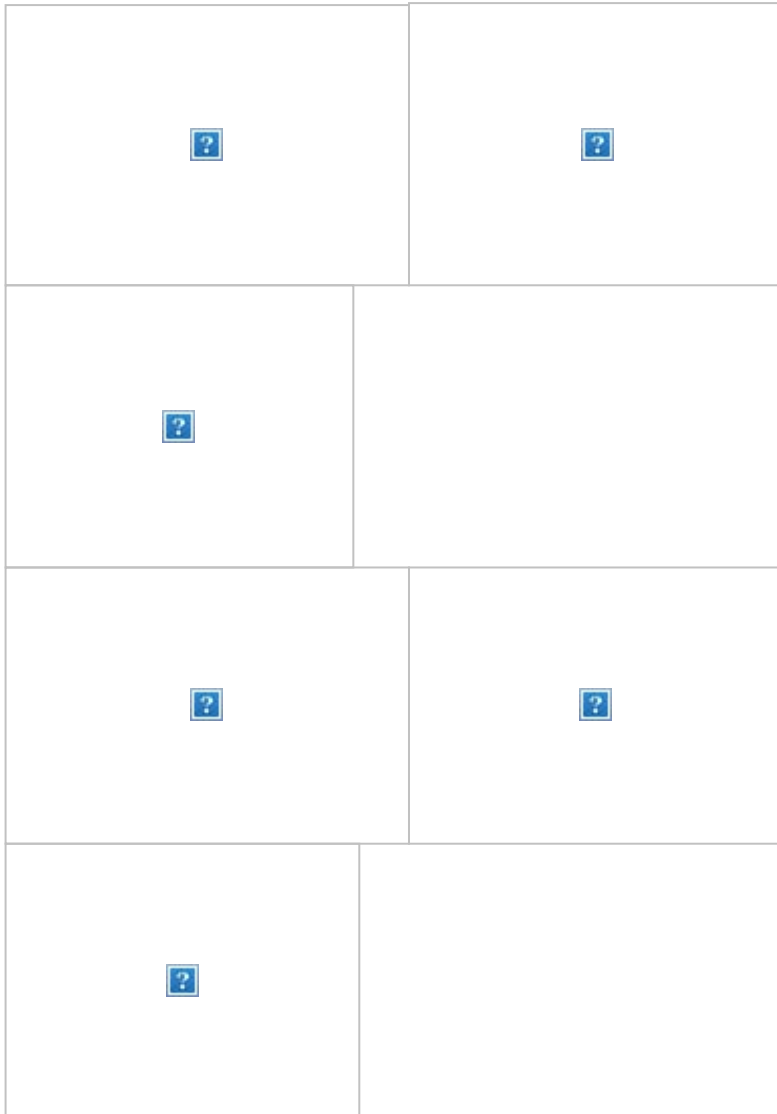

Last Monday, LADOT's GM, Seleta Reynolds took part in the California City Transportation Directors' Workshop, where cities across the state shared goals and challenges in creating safer and more livable cities. These workshops explored the challenge of navigating processes and procedures related to project delivery, and discussion of innovative engineering approaches to work towards adopting a Vision Zero policy for all of California. The forum allowed key transportation leaders to learn from one another, with a focus on coordinating efforts to move forward together.

Perfect Attendance Recognition

LADOT celebrates its wonderful staff who dedicate their time to help make Los Angeles a great city to live, work and play in. Yesterday, 152 employees were recognized for their perfect attendance throughout FY14-15. These employees represent more than 10% of our full time staff. Each were honored with certificates, service pins, and other mementos donated by the LA City Employees Association. In addition, a Health and Wellness Fair was held for all attendees at the California Endowment Center. Congrats to all who received this special recognition!
